/webstats directory is prompting for a username and password after upgrading EHCP Force Accessing the Protected /webstats Directory

If you recently upgraded to the latest version of EHCP Force Edition, you may have noticed that you are now prompted for a login and password to access the /webstats directory for your domain.

In an effort to provide additional security, this directory has now been password protected.

The login and password are as follows:

Login: DomainName
Password: EHCPPanelUsername

For example, if my domain is test.com, I would enter the following:

Login: test.com
Password: coolkid

In the example above, coolkid is my login that is used for the EHCP control panel, and is the username the domain name of test.com is associated with.
